

Daniela Banks

PROFESSOR OF ENGLISH

Profile

Dynamic and dedicated professor of English, committed to the advancement and growth of students. Adept in creating and implementing powerful curricula designed to help students achieve their full potential.

Employment History

Professor of English, Rhode Island College, Providence

SEPTEMBER 2019 – PRESENT

- Created curricula for first-year and upper-division writing courses.
- Worked to cultivate experiential learning and active engagement in the classroom.
- Worked with department members to enhance program initiatives.
- Supported English majors, as well as all members of the writing program.
- Worked with students from diverse writing backgrounds to identify and foster their own strengths.
- Initiated, facilitated and moderated classroom discussions.
- Served as a department mentor and advisor.

Assistant Professor of English, Rhode Island College, Providence

AUGUST 2016 – SEPTEMBER 2019

- Provided optimal support to the head of the English department.
- Conducted assigned investigations and studies.
- Taught introductory and advanced courses in creative writing.
- Participated in interdisciplinary collaboration.
- Remained fully committed to enriching the academic experience offered by the English department at Rhode Island College.

Education

M.A., English, Brown University, Providence

SEPTEMBER 2017 – JUNE 2018

B.A., Comparative Literature, Brown University, Providence

SEPTEMBER 2017 – MAY 2018

References

References available upon request

Contact

144 Seawall Lane

Providence, RI 02909-00

401-234-5454

daniela@ric.edu

Skills

Advanced knowledge of Literature

Excellent Communication Skills

Academic Research

Curriculum and Instruction

Honesty and Integrity

Languages

English

Italian